Report of the Activity

Title	Guest Lecture on Agroforestry and Rural Development
Day & Date	Tuesday, 30 th July, 2024.
Organizer	Department of Botany.	Participated Students: 32
Background	The Department of Botany consistently promoted various academic and extension activities such as seminars, workshops, field visit and guest lecture. As a part of this initiative we are organized this guest lecture to provide students with insights into sustainable practices like agroforestry and their role in rural development. The lecture aimed to connect botanical knowledge with real life applications in rural development in regions where community based practices are essential for sustainability.
Objective	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• To introduce students to the concept and importance of agroforestry.• To highlight the role of plants and trees in sustainable rural development.• To create awareness about environmental conservation and resource management.• To provide insights into field based research and community oriented work carried out by SEARCH.• To motivate students to explore career opportunities in rural development and applied botany.
Conclusion	The guest lecture was highly informative and inspiring. The speaker delivered an informative lecture, explaining how agroforestry systems help in improving soil fertility, increasing farm productivity and additional sources of income to rural communities. It helped students understand the practical applications of botany in solving real world problems related to rural development and environmental sustainability. The session successfully encouraged students to think beyond theoretical knowledge and consider contributing to society through scientific and community based approaches.
